The department has well equipped laboratories and state of the art Rapid Prototyping setup. The CAD/CAM centre is equipped with recent design and analysis software, CNC trainers and Robots.

About the Program
The future of the internal combustion engine is a hot topic of discussion among the mechanical engineers these days. The demand for more ‘fuel efficient’ engines has resulted into many metrological as well as design related changes. Also the Indian automobile industry is struggling very hard to meet the deadline of implementation of BS-VI norms. As the emission norms are getting more and more stringent and newer green-alternative fuels are being invented; the design of internal combustion engines is passing through a phase of radical change. Though the future technological developments may witness the growth of ‘hybrid’ and ‘plug in hybrid’ vehicles, these vehicles shall still need IC engines.

This STTP shall offer unique opportunity to the faculty dealing with the subjects like IC Engines, Automobile engineering to get acquainted with such technological advances. This program is designed with the aim of bridging the gap between research labs of repute and the academic institute.

Eligibility and Registration Charges
Faculty members from Mechanical engineering departments of AICTE approved engineering colleges, who are dealing with this subject are eligible to apply. There is no course fee. However provisionally selected candidates are required to pay refundable caution deposit of Rs 2000/- (two thousand only)

Travel and Accommodation
Traveling allowance shall be paid to outstation candidates as per norms. Accommodation shall be made available on request on payment basis.
